Petersburg Council Adopt Closing Ordinance From Eleven-Five to Five in Morning.

THE TRIAL OF A. W. HARRIS dentist.

A Stout Legal Battle Being LIFE IN ATHLETICS Waged in the Hustings Court.

PETERSBURG, VA., April 3.—The early closing saloon ordinance passed the Counell this evening by a vote of twelve to eleven, providing that all bars be closed from five minutes after 11 at night until 5 n the morning. The majority report from five minutes after 11 at night until 5 in the morning. The imajority report from the Finance and Police Committees favored 12 as the closing hour, and 11:05 was suggested by Councilman R. B. Davis this evening when the move to pass an 11 o'clock ordinance as a substitute was ruled out because that hour was provided by the original ordinance offered by Councilman J. H. Gray.

A petition from Old Street residents and property owners for the paving the roadway of the street was referred to the special committee in charge of public improvements.

The Council session was much shorter than usual, comparatively little business being before the body.

The long pending A. W. Harris case came before Judge Mullen in the Hustings Court to-day. W. B. Mellwainer, counsel for the defense, demurring to the indictment, which move was overruled by the court, two special pleas then being entered by defendant's counsel, claiming a former acquittal and a previous settlement of the case. In legal parlance, the pleas are known as "antrefols acquit (formerly acquitted) and "res judicati" (matter decided). The battle of legal arguments went on all the afternoon, and the case will be fought to a hard finish. Harris is a well known colored lawyer here, who was acquitted in the Mayor's Court several months ago of the charge of inciting a negro porter named Robert Trayner to steal bales of cotton from the commission house of Arrhigton and Green. The bales were taken from the sidewalk in front of the store, and hidden in the basement of an adjoining building, After the acquittal of Harris by the Mayor, Commonwealth's Attorney Mann secured an indictment by the grand fury. Harris was formerly employed in the Richmond internal revenue office. The arguments will be continued to-morrow. DANVILLE, VA., April 3.—The Danville team, of the Virginia Sinte League, was defeated by the Boston Nationals in a rather interesting game here to-day by a score of 5 to 1. The local team was outclassed, and displayed some little lack of practice, not having been in the field as long as the other players. The National League team was in excellent shape, and although several times during the game two and three men were upon the bases for the locals, they were only able to shove one man over the rubber, while, on the other hand, the Boston team scored five runs.

Both teams changed pitchers at the end of the fifth huling, Boston replacing Lindaman with Cy Young, Jr., the famous southpaw, and Danville releving Richards with Colline. At the same time Brown, who had been catching for Boston, was taken out and Needham put his stead.

Of the two Boston pitchers, Young showed up much the better, for although the only run obtained by the Danville huring the first inning that he occupied the box, this score was due in a large measure to errors of the pitcher players, there being not a single earned run during the game. After this first linning the local men were unable to find his curves and but one hit was made off his delivery during the game.
